Sanctioned-suicide.org is a continuation of sanctionedsuicide.com, which got banned from Epik domain registrar, possibly due to having minors on the site at the time.^{[3][4]}

During late 2021, the NYTimes released a 33-page, front page expose on the site and determined it facilitated and encouraged dozens of real life suicides. In a follow-up piece, the authors mentioned they confirmed the deaths of 50 individuals who committed suicide after using the site, including minors. The authors estimated possibly 500+ people died on the site. They also found that its founders and operators were: Diego J. Galante (Sergeantincel) and Lamarcus Small (Master/Marquis), who also founded and ran incels.is and looksmax.org, among other sites.

The URL went offline in May 2022 without redirect, and the URL for the forum switched to sanctioned-suicide.net. (not to be confused with their first domain, which was missing a dash) In late 2022, the .org URL went back online and .net redirected back to .org.

Controversy [edit]

Death cult [edit]

SanctionedSuicide and other forums on the same server from 2018-2021 had a number of hallmarks of a cult. The founder of the sites called himself, "Master of Ashes", insisted everyone call him 'Master' or 'Marquis', and reportedly, explicitly discouraged people from joining his suicide site for recovery, despite dishonestly running a token recovery subforum.

One of the site founders also ran a dating-difficulties forum on the same server. On this dating-difficulties forum, he created a dropdown option for forum users to label their threads as "suicidefuel". Here, and in related sites on the same server, users were frequently being trafficked to SanctionedSuicide by shady forum accounts. Webarchives show that Diego made sure step-by-step suicide instructions remained on the Suicide Wiki, that he created and managed a suicide pact thread, and that the suicide forum was rife with exploitation.

Typical signs of a cult include exploitation of minors. Sanctioned-suicide has led to the deaths of various publicized young people, including at least 5 reported teenagers.^{[5][6][7]}

According to publicly available webarchives, Nathan Larson appears to have been registered on SanctionedSuicide. He was arrested later for an alleged child abduction attempt.

Accounts from other boards founded by Lamarcus and Diego trafficking users to

SanctionedSuicide [edit]

Many accounts on incel forums owned by Lamarcus and Diego used links and instructions from SanctionedSuicide to encourage people on incels.is and looksmax.org to kill themselves. Diocel (known on some forums as 'Jokie') seems to have been the most prolific user who did this, but others who also did this included nystagmuscel, Snowstormhigh, genetically_over, simply_over, Leblid, theREALbleachcel, RoBobaFett999, and jefferson, among others. ^{[8][9][10][11][12][13][14][15][16]}

Guide to partially suspended hanging:

Warning: Don't try this method unless you're totally sure that:
a) you want to kill yourself
b) that you won't be found for at least 30 minutes after you attempt.

This method is very lethal and quick (quick from your perspective anyway, as you black out within seconds), but if you're found in time and 'saved' you can end up with serious brain damage and/or be left a vegetable.

Hanging is a good option if it's full suspension. Guns are good as well. For both, just make sure no one will check up on you for a good hour or go in a secluded area.

The incels.is user 'simply_over' peddling a meat preservative commonly advertised on SanctionedSuicide as a suicide agent, and directing users to SanctionedSuicide

In late 2021, users of incels.is, led by incels.is moderator "PPEcel", wrote a letter to the head of US federal law enforcement saying they were "familiar with many members" of the SanctionedSuicide site. In response to criticism, PPEcel stated on Twitter, "Yes, I did mail Garland a letter defending my friends' First Amendment rights to tell little girls to catch the train"^[18]

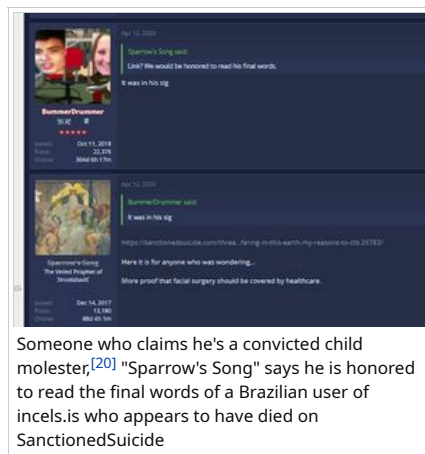

Post purges ^[edit]

After a New York Times expose on Diego, Lamarcus, and SanctionedSuicide, Diocel seemed distraught and requested in public for his account and posts to be deleted from incels.is. 50,000+ posts of his were deleted and he kept posting.

All posts on Diego's incels.is and Looksmax board referencing SanctionedSuicide, including the ones linked above, were also deleted from the forums not long ago, and are no longer accessible outside webarchives.

Alleged incels.co user deaths likely attributable to SanctionedSuicide crossover ^[edit]

According to public incels.is threads, a highly active incels.is user named 'thebuddhacel' allegedly died on SanctionedSuicide.^[19]

Another user named IengZengCel allegedly died using a bizarre chemical suicide method commonly advertised on incels.is and SanctionedSuicide (sodium nitrite ingestion).^[21]

Another user self-nicknamed Mr. Kittycel (now shows as "Deleted User") allegedly died by sodium nitrite ingestion.^[22]

Todd's testimony ^[edit]

Former incels.is user Todd made a YouTube video called. Incels.is is a honeypot with an agenda to make you want to die. LEAVE. Naama Kates is cool, though.,^[23] calling incels.is a death cult with leaders who want to, 'beat you down and make you feel more isolated'. In it, he said Diego J. Galante once stated incels.is was part of a "trifecta" of forums that funnel people to SanctionedSuicide. Incel forum users VanSavage and Zesto made similar accusations, albeit interspersing their accusations with less credible claims.^{[24][25]}

Founder utilized outside organizations to posture as anti-suicide while running a suicide pact thread ^[edit]

During November 2020, Diego announced he was a part of a "working group" to intervene on suicidal incels, in a video featuring podcaster Naama Katz and Light Upon Light leader Jesse Morton.^[26] This occurred while Diego was still running SanctionedSuicide, where Diego had publicly set up a pinned thread facilitating suicide pacts and shielded user info from outsiders by asking users and shielded user info from outsiders by asking users not to post contact info the thread (or anywhere).^[27]

At this point, neither Jesse or Naama seem to have publicly commented on SanctionedSuicide. Much later, the mom of a dead child from SanctionedSuicide complained on Twitter that Naama was initially hiding posts about SanctionedSuicide that others posted on her Twitter feed.^[28] Naama later addressed the SanctionedSuicide forum by bringing Diego's partner LaMarcus Small onto her podcast to discuss it. During the podcast, LaMarcus had erupted in anger at one of the moms in the podcast asking why he was being blamed for user deaths despite running the site.

Diego, at some point prior to November 2020, probably began working with Jesse Morton personally. Coming up with a new alias, "Alexander Ash", Diego took advantage of contacts he had established earlier from Jesse Morton's social circles, including featuring some of them in his blog, and started participating in friendly interviews with additional CVE organizations.

Although Jesse never showed any evidence of aiding this 'death cult', during all this time, 'Serge's' suicide site still facilitated suicide.

NYTimes expose of Lamarcus and Diego ^[edit]

In late 2021, Gabriel Dance and Megan Twohey authored a 33-page, front page New York Times article which exposed the identity and background of 'Serge'/'SergeantIncel'.^[29] The Times article was about suicide facilitation websites Diego and his partner Lamarcus ran.^[30] The article tied Diego's suicide facilitation forum to over 500 possible deaths, and over 50^[31] deaths have been individually confirmed by the Times as of early 2022.

Site founder "Serge/SergeantIncel", who the authors of a NYTimes article identified as, "Diego Joaquín Galante", was quoted in a NYTimes Daily, as managing, "incels.co" and the "largest incel forum on the web".^[32]

Diego resigns from his websites ^[edit]

The NYTimes expose noted Diego made efforts to shield the identities of users who died on his suicide facilitation forum. The deaths included (US law designated) minors. Diego and Lamarcus' full names, city-locations, and backgrounds were subsequently republished in dozens of other media outlets.^[33] Diego resigned from his sites and allegedly handed his main "incel" site off to two white nationalists and neo-nazis who had previously tried and failed to acquire Wizchan, who subsequently handed the forum back to Lamarcus Small.

In response to the NYTimes investigation on SanctionedSuicide, Diego acknowledged posting on SanctionedSuicide as "Serge", but, like, "Master", denied being a founder or operator of the site.^[34] Podcasts where Diego used the same alias "Serge", to represent his incel sites, contain the same voice he used when journalists cold called him for their podcast after reportedly finding his name in documents tied to both SanctionedSuicide and the incel sites.^[35] Additionally, publicly available webarchives show the account labeled "Serge" on SanctionedSuicide was listed as a site administrator in every post and coordinated with "Master" in operation of the site. Additionally, the NYTimes reporters stated in public they gained access to photo/s of "Serge" from sources of their SanctionedSuicide investigation, photo/s which were a match with that of Diego.^[36]

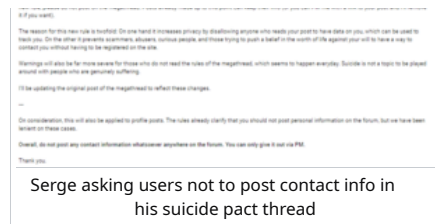

Anne Speckhard posted on Twitter, in public, afterward, that a member of ICSVE helped on the NYTimes piece, but didn't specify how.^[37]

Lamarcus attempts redirection ^[edit]

Lamarcus tried to pin the sites on his immediate family, specifically his brother, which the NYTimes journalists insinuated was a dishonest redirection in their piece.

Naama criticizes the expose ^[edit]

Naama Katz released an article for Unherd trying to cast doubt on the helpfulness of the site owners names being publicly exposed. Naama's piece tried to emotionally pivot to any possible proud members of sanctionedsuicide,^[38] a site where LaMarcus had reportedly discouraged users from joining for recovery. Such proud SanctionedSuicide members did exist, who then circulated her piece on the SanctionedSuicide forum.

Petitions asking the US DOJ to criminally investigate the site and it's founders [\[edit\]](#)

Congress [\[edit\]](#)

Between the first and second NYTimes reports on SanctionedSuicide, 7 members of Congress, led by Congresswoman Lori Trahan of Massachusetts, wrote a letter to the Attorney General containing the full names of both website operators, asking what actions Congress could take to allow the U.S. Department of Justice to investigate the founders and allow for a criminal prosecution of both Lamarcus and Diego.^[39] In 2022, it was reported that Congress plans to further investigate the suicide forum.^[40]

News of all of the above was republished in dozens of news outlets, with some choosing to list the full names of the site founders.

Carrie Goldberg law [\[edit\]](#)

Personal injury lawyer Carrie Goldberg posted an open letter to the DOJ naming Diego and Lamarcus and stating that Diego and Lamarcus harmed individuals in the United States.

She stated the following laws may apply to site operators of SanctionedSuicide.^{[41][42][43][44]}

- 18USC111 - Murder
- 18USC112- Manslaughter
- 18USC113 - Attempt to commit murder or manslaughter
- 18USC117 - Conspiracy to murder
- 18USC95 - Racketeering
- 18USC96 - Racketeer influenced and corrupt organization
- 18USC1519 - Destruction, alteration, or falsification of records in Federal investigation and bankruptcy

Media [\[edit\]](#)

On December 21, 2021, a follow up piece to the first NYTimes article mentioned that Diego and Lamarcus resigned from administrator positions on several incel websites they founded.^[46] These included incels.is and looksmx.org.

The follow-up report also stated that an Uruguayan prosecutor launched an indefinite government investigation into the matter of the first NYTimes story. Local Montevideo news stated it would be a tough investigation due to the vague nature of suicide assistance laws.^[47] Uruguay INTERPOL was also reported as collecting evidence on the matter of the site and its founders in its Uruguay cybercrimes unit.^[48]

This same day, on the 21st, Jesse Morton died randomly in Florida, many states away from his home in Virginia, at a young age, and seemingly without any debilitating illness as he was Tweeting normally a day before.^[49]

WBUR later reported that Uruguay was investigating Diego as well.^[50]

Software [\[edit\]](#)

Like on the previous domain, the forum uses Xenforo and a Google Material inspired theme.

Wiki [\[edit\]](#)

The admins of the site run a Suicide Wiki detailing methods of suicide for it's members.^[51] This first wiki, founded by Diego, appeared at suicide.wiki in 2019 and was linked at the top of SanctionedSuicide.com.^[52] ^{[53][54][55][56][57]} Diego was an editor on the wiki, and made efforts to keep Sodium Nitrite instructions on the wiki. Suicide.wiki is now defunct. A replacement wiki was operated during 2022 by a user of SanctionedSuicide at suicidewiki.org (not to be confused with Nathan Larson's earlier suicidewiki.org). Suicidewiki.org went offline relatively fast, and was replaced by suicide-wiki.com.

URL change [\[edit\]](#)

Users speculated that the sanctioned-suicide.org domain was taken down by the domain registrar. Users got an email redirecting them to the new domain at sanctioned-suicide.net. In this thread user MicropBaldCurrycel, claimed he thinks the site will eventually get totally shut down by what he calls "social justice warriors".^[58]

Alleged 2022 law enforcement involvement ^[edit]

In May 2022, SanctionedSuicide user Jaegerist123 said that police intercepted a package of Sodium Nitrite they had received from someone the entire forum appears to call "D".^[59] In the same public thread, user "Bing", mentioned that US Homeland Security and ICE confiscated Sodium Nitrite he said he had and asks users to hide their Sodium Nitrite.^[60] Forum user " locked*n*loaded" said that the SanctionedSuicide forum is "crawling with law enforcement right now", and asked users to be careful what they share with new members of the forum.^[61]

Fallout ^[edit]

In early 2022, a news report mentioned Congress will investigate the site.^[62]

Sanctioned Suicide in spanish ^[edit]

In mid-2022, a website appeared which is apparently a Spanish version of the Sanctioned Suicide site. It was founded in August 2022 by a user named Professor and a medical student named Judah, who also owns the Arepahan imageboard . Professor offered Judah to create the forum, where most of the financing would correspond to Judah and Professor would be the one who would totally manage the site, appearing as an administrator in it. Judah also allegedly owns the Suicide Wiki reboot at suicide-wiki.com and also likely owned the second iteration of suicidewiki.org.
